

NEW YORK OBSERVER

August 20, 2014

PAZZA FOR PIZZA

Shindigger asks Martha Stewart, gourmet chefs and actress Rachel Brosnahan about pie

Shindigger recently attended a party commemorating the second anniversary of Dellarocco's Pizza in Brooklyn Heights. Afterward, we were inspired to craft the perfect summer pizza, but wanted advice on what to use

Rumors of a hush-hush pizza, not listed on the menu of David Burke's new fabrick restaurant and Spyglass bar, prompted Shindigger to visit the establishment's lounge overlooking the Empire State Building.

"David has a couple different classic dishes, like his smoked salmon, so we did a variation on a pizza," disclosed Adin Langille, the executive chef. "We wanted something off the beaten path, and both are a hit." We soon learned that guests in the know can feast on the clandestine Flying Hawaiian Pizza.

"We use candied bacon and pickled pineapple," Mr. Langille said with a smirk. "Maybe if you ask one of our servers you'll get it."