

URBANDADDY

June 16, 2014

NIGHTLIFE

Nobody wants to talk about new rooftop bars on a Monday, so we'll just skip right to the...

Oh, really. You... do. Huh.

In that case, say hello to Spyglass (left, atop Archer in Midtown) and Roof at Park South, two very different yet equally rooftop-y new watering holes.

The former opens Wednesday and the latter's open now. Herewith, a breakdown, tale-of-the-tape-style...

The Views

Spyglass: From the moment you step out of the elevator, you'll enjoy an unobstructed peek at the Empire State Building. It's the date spot King Kong always wanted.

The Menus

Spyglass: Conversation starters like the bourbon-y You Look Smashing, along with octopus tacos from David Burke Fabrick downstairs.

The Wild Cards

Spyglass: A private back room with its own secluded terrace.

The Takeaway

Spyglass: Bring dates. Bring out-of-town guests. Bring a high tolerance for selfies.

The rest should come naturally.